NEW YORK HAS ENOUGH FOR EVERYONE

IF THE WEALTHY PAY WHAT THEY OWE

New York State is the most unequal place in the nation.

While hardworking New Yorkers put in their time to support our families, the cost of living keeps going up because the ultra-rich exploit our communities. New York State is the most unequal place in the nation. The top 1% have taken almost a third of all income, while rising costs force hardworking people out of the city every year as more millionaires move in.

The solution to these problems? Ensure the ultra-rich pay what they owe. This means raising corporate taxes (S.1980/A3690), introducing a capital gains tax (S2162/A2576), setting up progressive income taxes (S2059/A3115), and more. We can bring in an extra $20 billion for the state just from these measures. That way, we can make sure we house everyone. We can also eliminate NY's top source of pollution, create programs for universal childcare and education and fully fund our schools, parks and libraries.

Rather than slashing budgets, Mayor Adams should use his sway in Albany to drum up support to tax the rich.
